FRANCE MOURNS DEATH OF DOUMER

SHOOTS HUSBAND, WOUNDS SELF

WOMAN IN HOSPITAL HERE AFTER ATTACK ON HUSBAND FRIDAY

Shooting Climax Of Family Quarrel At Waynesville

Climaxing a domestic quarrel, Mrs. Charles Gray, 42, allegedly shot and inflicted minor wounds upon her husband, then turned the gun upon herself in what was described as an attempted murder and suicide at the Gray residence in Waynesville, early Friday night.

With bullet wounds in the breast and abdomen, Mrs. Gray was rushed to McClellan Hospital where surgeons immediately operated and removed the two bullets.

The woman's condition, though grave, was considered slightly more favorable Saturday morning, and Dr. R. R. McClellan indicated the patient has a chance of recovery.

Mrs. Gray, before attempting to end her own life, was reported to have fired two shots at her 45-year-old husband, one bullet striking his right hand and the second wounding him in the leg. Both wounds are of a minor nature.

The double shooting was said by Charles P. Joy, village marshal, to have been the outgrowth of frequent quarrels between the man and his wife in recent months. Neighbors said the couple had frequently engaged in violent arguments during the last two months.

Taking advantage of the absence of her husband, a retired farmer, who had gone to a friend's farm where he was employed, Mrs. Gray, authorities say, drove their auto to Lebanon, where she purchased a pistol and bullets.

After returning home, she waited for her husband to come back from work, Marshal Joy said he learned.

Soon after the man entered the house, an argument began, culminating in the firing of a shot by Mrs. Gray. The bullet struck her husband in the hand, and as he ran toward the door, a second bullet hit his leg, he told the marshal.

Mrs. Gray then set fire to the curtains in the residence before attempting suicide. The husband, upon escaping from the house went directly to the marshal's office, where he reached the scene of the shooting, found the woman lying on the floor and the flames spreading. Firemen extinguished the blaze with only minor damage resulting.

TWO INJURED WHEN AUTO HITS BRIDGE

CINCINNATI, O., May 7.—Two persons were injured today when their way to attend the Kentucky Derby at Louisville when their automobile was demolished against a bridge abutment near Sharonville.

County police took them to General Hospital where they were registered as Marcel Bauer, 29, oil salesman, 60 E. College St., Springfield, right leg fracture and multiple cuts and Miss Helen Stevens, 23, of 80 Campbell St., Delaware, O., nose fracture, severe cut and right arm and leg injuries. Conditions of both were serious.

Apparently, the darkness obscured Bauer's view of the abutment which is said to support the middle of the bridge.

FOUR IN HOSPITAL FOLLOWING RIOTS

CHICAGO, May 7.—Four demonstrators were in the hospital today with broken legs and four others suffering from minor bullet wounds after police quelled a protest gathering at suburban Melrose Park with machine gun fire.

Under arrest were thirty-seven persons, including two women, charged with being leaders of a demonstration of 300 persons who were charged by firemen, police and county highway patrolmen when they waved Red flags and distributed Communist literature.

None of those injured was hurt seriously.

GRANGE ASKS CUTS

COLUMBUS, O., May 7.—Governor White today was urged by the executive committee of the Ohio State Grange to broaden his call for the special session of the general assembly May 16 by addition of a request that the legislature adjust salaries of all elective officials so that such adjustment will affect salaries of officers elected at the coming November election.

SALESMAN KILLS WIFE AND THEN ENDS OWN LIFE AT CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, May 7.—Arthur W. Heinemann, 40, an auto salesman, killed his wife, Ruth, with one shot early today, then drove to a suburban road where he shot and killed himself.

The tragedy came to light at dawn when Patrolman Joseph Worst discovered Heinemann's parked automobile. The pistol Heinemann used was found by his side.

A note found on the body directed police to another part of the county, where, the note said, the body of his wife would be found. The note, addressed to Charles B. Terry, attorney, read:

"My dear Ruth died in my arms—cause—agitated—melancholia—and etc. My dear is in the plowed field north of Keller and Miami Roads, Hamilton County. Kindly handle everything, burial through Mack Johnson, McMillan St. Thanks. A. W. Heinemann."

County patrolmen found the body of the woman, who also was about 40, on Kugler Mills Road not far away. It lay in a freshly

NEPHEWS ADMIT SLAYING OF UNCLE

CLEVELAND, O., May 7.—Two youthful relatives of John Pizarro, 48, bootlegger and still operator, were said to have confessed they beat him to death early yesterday and left his body in his parked coupe, in a report by Detective Inspector Cornelius W. Cody.

Joseph Pizarro, 18, nephew of the dead man, and Ralph Baricelli, 21, nephew of his wife, have confessed they were the slayers, Cody said.

Both youths lived with Pizarro in his home here. They plotted and carried out the killing, Cody said, because Pizarro attempted to pay undue attention to his 16-year old step-daughter.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

WOOSTER, O., May 7.—Arthur A. Paul of Orrville was at liberty under bond today on charges of embezzling $750 while he was clerk of Green Township. Three indictments charge that Paul, while serving as a clerk, cashed checks for township funds but did not return the funds to the township depository. Paul pleaded not guilty in a preliminary hearing yesterday.

selective service act during the World War.

General Crowder was 73 years of age. He was taken ill several weeks ago while in Havana and was brought to the Walter Reed Hospital here for care by army physicians. He entered the hospital February 19. For a time he seemed slightly better but a complication of troubles was too great for the soldier's constitution to overcome.

He died at 4:34 a. m. today. Two sisters of the general were with him when he died.

It was expected that General Crowder would be buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

Major Gen. Enoch H. Crowder was known chiefly to present day Americans for his work in formulating and administering the selective service or draft laws during the World War.

He was born at Edinburg, Mo., April 11, 1859, and entered West Point from that state. On being graduated, he was assigned to frontier duty in Texas as a lieutenant of cavalry.

After five years on this assignment, he taught military science and tactics at the University of Missouri. Later he did scouting service in New Mexico and North Dakota.

In 1923 he resigned from service to become ambassador to Cuba and in 1927, retiring from the post, entered the private practice of law, with offices in Chicago and Kansas City.

He was a brigadier general during the Spanish American war and served as judge advocate of the expeditionary forces during that conflict. During the Russian-Japanese war he was detailed as an observer with the Japanese forces. Crowder was a warm personal friend of Gen. John J. Pershing, who referred to him affectionately in his recently published war memories.

FOLLOWERS OF TURF WORLD GATHER FOR KENTUCKY CLASSIC

Crowd Smaller But Enthusiasm High For Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 7.—The hosts of the turf world moved on Churchill Downs today for the running of the Kentucky Derby, which for fifty-eight years has attracted millions of people and made it one of the most famous spectacles in the world.

The crowd was a bit smaller, the celebrations and tumult were more subdued, the tipsters and the touts were a trifle less active and money was a little short, but it was still the Derby—America's most picturesque turf spectacle.

It was estimated the crowd will number about 45,000. Experts say the race rests between three horses, Mrs. L. G. Kaufman's Tick On, Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Stephen Feltich and Col. E. R. Bradley's Burgoon King.

Tick On, a black colt, which lost his only start this year by a length, occupied the favorite's post, being quoted at 2-1. Stephen Feltich, coupled with Overtime as the Whitney entry, and Burgoon King, coupled with Brother Joe as the Bradley entry, each were 6-1. Those odds, however, were slated for considerable fluctuation before post time, about 4 p. m.

Like everything else about the race, the weather remained decidedly uncertain. The official weather forecast was showers in the afternoon, but that also was yesterday's prediction and they did not materialize.

Twenty thoroughbreds, a larger number than expected, were named yesterday through the entry box, but it was believed that when the last scratch was made the field would number no more than fifteen, possibly only fourteen.

Of the twenty entries, fourteen were colts, five geldings, and one filly. The latter, Oscillation, was expected to be scratched. Other doubtful starters were Crystal Prince, Our Fancy, Thistle Ace and Cee Tee. Some were inclined to include Liberty Limited in the doubtful group, believing that the Three D's Stock Farm entry had not recovered from infected heels.

The leading dark horses in today's race seem to be Adobe Post, Cold Check and Lucky Tom.

The Derby record of two minutes and one-fourth seconds for the mile and a quarter set by Twenty Grand last year appears far beyond the reach of any horse in this year's field, but two other records were at least in danger.

Earl Sande, up on Mrs. Whitney's Stephen Feltich in the betting had a chance to break his deadlock with Isaac Murphy, great little Negro jockey of more than forty years ago for the honor of riding the most Derby winners. Each has three, and Sande, staging his second comeback, regards his mount today as equal to any horse in the race.

Gustav Miller Freed Near State Park; Not Injured

JOLIET, Ill., May 7.—Gustav Miller, 22, son of a wealthy local malt dealer, held kidnaped eight days after being abducted from the home of his fiancée, returned home safely shortly before 2 a. m. today.

He was unharmed and members of the family said no ransom was paid for the youth's release.

Miller was released at the gates of Starved Rock State Park, sixty miles south of here. A telephone message to his brother, Martin Miller, directed the family to go to an unexplained place in Chicago where they obtained information that the youth would be found at the State Park.

Despite the denial by the family that ransom had been paid, belief was general that an amount approximately $10,000 was paid.

At no time, said Miller, did he obtain a clear view of his captors and he was doubtful if he would be able to identify them if his fiancée.

"As I left the home of my fiancée," Miller said, "about midnight last Thursday a man holding a revolver jumped from my automobile when I went to get in. A companion appeared in a moment and the two of them forced me to drive several miles out of the city."

"Here I was transferred to another automobile and a towel thrust over my face. We drove along for several hours. There were at least three men in the car guarding me. Eventually we arrived at a home. I was taken to what I believe was the basement and placed on a mattress."

"They handcuffed me and shackled my feet so I could not escape. A gauze bandage was placed over my eyes. During the entire eight days I was kept in this position. The men gave me whatever I wished to eat and outside of the discomfort of the handcuffs I suffered no harm."

SEEK DEGENERATE AS GIRL'S SLAYER

TOLEDO, O., May 7.—Despite redoubled efforts of police to run down every available clue in the case of Miss Winifred Rafferty, 22-year-old Robinwood hospital employee, whose body was found yesterday morning on a lawn here, the murderer still was at large today.

Convinced that the attack and murder was the work of a degenerate, officers traced down thirty suspected degenerates throughout the city. Eight have been questioned by police but could not be connected with the crime. Twelve others were being investigated by detectives. The other ten have moved to new addresses and were being traced.

Detective Inspector Emmett Cairl, and Detective Bernard Cummings returned last night from Lima, O., with two men arrested yesterday at Lima by railroad detectives. It was probable, however, they will be released, police intimated.

THREE INJURED

DELAWARE, O., May 7.—While 1800 persons watched a May Day pageant at Ohio Wesleyan University here Friday, a section of temporary bleachers collapsed, injuring three persons seriously. Twelve others received minor injuries. Those badly hurt were Mrs. Julia Campbell, Delaware; Mrs. Ella Kent, Delaware, and Earl Thompson, Mason.

The fair was open all day Saturday and will remain open until late Saturday night. Rotarians are on the floor at all times and will direct patrons to any of the exhibits.

BELIEVE FLEISHER HAD PART IN GASTON MEANS RANSOM HOAX

EL PASO, Tex., May 7.—Hotel Paso Del Norte records today revealed that Miss Elizabeth Nelson, a nurse employed by Mrs. Edward B. McLean, was registered at the hotel at the same time Gaston B. Means was there early in April.

Mrs. McLean's name did not appear on the register.

El Paso officers said they investigated reports that Harry Fleisher, head of the Detroit purple gang, who is sought for questioning in connection with the kidnaping, was at the hotel when Means was there.

A man resembling pictures of Fleisher was registered from Detroit under another name. This man left the hotel suddenly after officers received information that Fleisher was at the hotel.

Mrs. McLean was in El Paso at that time, having been urged there by Means on his promise of developments in the kidnaping case.

DIVORCEE QUIZZED IN AX MURDER

A pretty divorcee has been held at Memphis, Tenn., for questioning in the ax slaying of Mrs. Stanley Puryear and her eight-year-old daughter, shown above. Police say the divorcee was known to have been friendly with Puryear, who is held on a charge of killing

Will Jamison, a Negro, who, Puryear claims, he caught wielding the ax. On his deathbed the Negro denied he killed Mrs. Puryear and her daughter and claimed he was shot by a man fitting Puryear's description, when called to Puryear's house.

ROTARY CLUB HOBBY FAIR BRINGS 6,300 TO OPENING FRIDAY

Crowds View Nearly 800 Exhibits; All Entries Judged

Greene County's first Boys' Hobby Fair, sponsored by the Xenia Rotary Club in the Jobs Bldg., 23 E. Main St., opened ceremoniously Friday afternoon and more than 6,300 persons viewed the exhibits on the opening day.

The fair, first of its kind ever held here, is to acquaint the public with talents of boys, which might otherwise remain unnoticed, and from the various exhibits displayed the club feels that the purpose of the fair has been accomplished.

Between 700 and 800 exhibits are on display, representing the work of approximately 600 boys, as many have entered more than one exhibit. Every centralized school in the county, in addition to all schools in Xenia city, and a number of the one room schools in the county, are represented among the prize winners.

The exhibits were judged late Thursday night and first, second and third prize winners are designated by ribbons. Competent judges were obtained for each department and all exhibits were marked by numbers only for the judging.

One hundred and thirty first prizes, which are merchandise prizes, twenty-two departmental prizes, which will be a visit to the Boys' Hobby Fair, Cincinnati, next fall, as guests of the Rotary Club, and a grand prize, were awarded.

Boys may call for their exhibits at the room any time Monday and prizes will be presented when the boys receive their exhibits.

Music for the fair was furnished Friday afternoon by a forty-piece orchestra composed of pupils from Jamestown, Bowersville and Springfield schools, under direction of Miss Donna Clare Sholey, Jamestown. The Central High School Orchestra, directed by Harlow Dean, and the high school band, directed by Fred Saumeng, also played on the afternoon's program. The O. S. and S. O. Home Band, directed by H. E. Seall, furnished music Friday evening.

The fair was open all day Saturday and will remain open until late Saturday night. Rotarians are on the floor at all times and will direct patrons to any of the exhibits.

FUNERAL SERVICES ARRANGED; DIES AT HANDS OF ASSASSIN

Gunman Arrested; Painleve May Be Successor

PARIS, May 7.—Another man born of peasant stock appeared today as the likely successor to Paul Doumer as president of France.

Tradition calls for election of the president of the senate, who is Albert Francois Lebrun. He was born August 29, 1872 of a peasant family. He is a member of the senate Union Republican group and formerly served on the League of Nations mixed commission on armaments.

Conjecture on Doumer's successor increased today, however, with the name of Paul Painleve, former premier, mentioned prominently as the next president.

The constitution is a bit vague on selection of the new president merely stating he must be elected by the national assembly without delay.

PARIS, May 7.—President Paul Doumer died today, the victim of a crazed Russian assassin, as dawn broke over a saddened France which mourned the loss of its venerable and beloved "Pere."

The thirteenth president of the French republic, in his 75th year, regained consciousness for only a few minutes during the fourteen hours that the most skilled French physicians battled to save his life. He was shot at the base of the cranium and under the right shoulder.

The end came peacefully. Doumer had fallen into a coma from which four blood transfusions and an emergency operation failed to revive him.

Members of the president's family Premier Andre Tardieu, and high government officials were at his bedside.

Police held that the assassin, Dr. Paul Gorgoulloff, self-styled "chief of the Russian Fascists," was insane and that the assassination had no political significance. Gorgoulloff will be charged with first degree murder and probably will die one the guillotine.

Doumer once rallied sufficiently to ask weakly what happened to him.

The president was told that he had been in an automobile accident.

"Strange," he murmured. "I don't remember anything."

Prof. Gosselot, one of the physicians who attended the president, told the United Press, "We did everything science allows to prolong his life. We performed a Lombar puncture and sustained the heart with camphor oil. The president died without realizing his terrible suffering."

His body was taken from the hospital—across the street from the residence of Solomon Rothschild where the assassination occurred—to the Elysee Palace for embalming. Tears streamed down the face of Premier Tardieu and seemed to reflect the sentiment of millions of Frenchmen who through the night had prayed for the recovery of the venerable president.

Mme. Doumer left the hospital at 5 a. m. leaning heavily on the arm of her daughter, Mme. Emery.

The cabinet was to meet this morning to arrange the funeral details, according to state tradition. Also it was considered likely the national assembly would meet Tuesday at Versailles to select Doumer's successor.

The attack was one of the most sensational in the history of French politics. The gentle and popular president, who lost four sons in the World War in defense of France, had gone to the Rothschild mansion to attend a book sale for the benefit of war veterans.

A fashionable crowd filled the gorgeous salons of the Rothschild home.

A stranger had entered the Rothschild home some time before the president arrived. He walked briskly to the entrance of the mansion and was gone inside immediately. The man, Mr. Paul Gorgoulloff, was obviously nervous, and paced rapidly back and forth.

Soon the president entered, accompanied by his party. Paul Guchard, director of the Paris municipal police, was one step ahead of Doumer.

Gorgoulloff advanced toward Doumer. He drew a revolver and fired a bullet point blank into Doumer's forehead. The impact sent the president whirling.

A second time the assassin fired.

YOUTHFUL ARTIST WINS GRAND PRIZE AT ROTARY HOBBY FAIR

Jack Whitney, 18, son of Mrs. Herman E. Sellers, 728 S. Detroit St., senior at Central High School, is winner of the grand prize of the Boys' Hobby Fair, being held Friday and Saturday under Rotary Club auspices.

Whitney's exhibit includes seven freehand drawings in pen and ink and pencil, mounted on cardboard. The work, which appears that of an experienced artist, is drawing considerable comment.

Whitney has had no training in drawing and has been doing it as a pastime, he explains. The aim of the Hobby Fair was to bring out latent talent in boys which might otherwise remain unnoticed and the Rotary Club feels its object has been fulfilled especially in the case of the Whitney youth.

The winner came to Xenia from Dayton three years ago and is president of the senior class here. The grand prize he will receive is a wrist watch and he will also receive a trip to Cincinnati next fall to visit the Boys' Hobby Fair there as a guest of the Rotary Club as a departmental prize.

Other boys to receive departmental prizes, which will be the trip to Cincinnati, are as follows: ("A" boys are up to the age of 14 years inclusive and "B" boys are from 15 to 18 years of age, inclusive):

Department 1—(A) Eugene Shade, O. S. and S. O. Home; (B) Jack Whitney, Central.

Department 2—(A) James Cobby, O. S. and S. O. Home; (B) George Armstrong, Bath.

Department 3—(A) Ernest Beam, Springfield Valley; (B) Wilbur Bertram, Xenia.

Department 4—(A) Jim Stout IV, Central; (B) Maurice Hyman, Central.

Department 5—(A) Wilfred McDonald, Jefferson; (B) Marion Herr, Bath.

Department 6—(A) Charles Strain, Central; (B) Lewis McHenry, Bellbrook.

Department 7—(A) John Jenks, Jr., Jamestown; (B) Paul Cox, O. S. and S. O. Home.

MYERS Y. COOPER FOR GOVERNOR

Cooper's Program

- Twenty-five, per cent reduction in property tax for relief of farmer, home owner and business man.
- Other forms of wealth not now contributing proportionately to the cost of government, must pay an equitable share of taxes. Necessary revenues can be provided without resorting to a state sales tax.
- Revising the tax rate on such utilities as are not now paying their equitable proportion of public revenue.
- Establish a permanent education fund to be administered by local Boards of Education sufficient in amount to guarantee a standard school program to every section of the state.
- The public school revenues are to be stabilized by substituting other taxes to replace the amount of school tax that it is necessary to remove from property tax levies to secure the general reduction of twenty-five per cent on real estate.
- The only way to reduce taxes is to reduce expenses. There must be a retrenchment of governmental expenditures to conform to the drastic readjustment now taking place in all form of private enterprise.
- The time has come to quit mortgaging future incomes and future crops with bond issues. Local and state governments should operate on a pay-as-you-go basis.
- Gasoline and motor license fees to be used only for highway construction and maintenance.
- Less taxes from those who have been paying more than their share and more taxes from those who have been paying less than their share.
- The plan is for tax reduction, tax equalization and NOT tax increase.

"MOTHER'S DAY OBSERVANCE"

To The Editor:

On a Sunday afternoon in February, 1904, at the English Opera House, Indianapolis, Aerie No. 211 of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, held memorial services. At these services the Hon. Frank E. Hering, a past grand worthy president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, and editor of the Eagle Magazine, in words that were touching in their devotion and fragrant with sentiment, ascribed the goodness that is in men, to mother-love. He traced the evolution of civilization through the sacrifices of motherhood; he asserted that the hopes of mankind were dependent on the devotion and the unselfish love of mothers.

On this winter afternoon he voiced the thoughts and impulses that abide in the hearts of men, and with God-given vision he urged and pleaded for the setting aside of one day in the year as a nationwide memorial to the memory of mothers and motherhood. The thought set forth and the sentiment invoked, touched and quickened the heartbeats of the men and women present. They became the earnest advocates of the memorial; and from that historic address, on February 7th, 1904, and its noble inspiration, has come a world-observed anniversary. "Mother's Day" such was its birth! Its inspiration has moved the civilized world.

Public recognition of its founder, took place, when, on Mother's Day, May 10th, 1925, during exercises held at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington, the war mother's of America, acclaimed.

ed Mr. Hering as the "Father of Mother's Day", choosing him to make the address on "Mother".

Basking in the reflected glory of one of our most loyal brothers, the Fraternal Order of Eagles as represented by Xenia Aerie No. 1689, duly requests that the citizens of Xenia join with them in displaying our country's flag on Mother's Day, May 8th, as a fitting honor to mothers the world over.

Respectfully,
George Killen.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

In the mouth of the foolish is a rod of pride: but the lips of the wise shall preserve them.—Proverbs. xiv, 3.

A WINNING BATTLE

A nation-wide battle against illiteracy is making great progress. If Mrs. Cora Stewart, chairman of the executive committee of the National Advisory Committee on Illiteracy, speaks the truth.

In a recent article on this subject she says:

"Men, women and even children all over this country are joining with me and with each other in the holy mission of freeing the nation's illiterates. The aid of loyal comrades and friends and the guidance of an all-wise providence in addition to a cause that is just accounts largely for the great progress which has been made in our battle against illiteracy.

"Often I am asked, 'When will the battle against illiteracy be won?' Will it be when we have reduced illiteracy to what some term 'the irriducible minimum' or when the last illiterate in our country is taught?

"We seek to teach every illiterate, young and old, rich and poor, white and colored, native and foreign born, those easily capable of learning and those who are difficult and dense. We make no compromise with illiteracy on any ground and refuse to concede that there is any place for it or that any human being should be allowed to remain in its victim.

"Plato said: 'I believe when God creates a human being he has in his mind a conception of just what that individual ultimately is to become.' I do not believe that our Heavenly Father ever created any human being and expected or designed that he was ultimately and forever to be illiterate. Man created in the image of his Maker, and given for his guidance that Maker's plan in the form of a book, was never destined to remain untought and blind to that book and to all the good literature in the libraries of the world.

"Our movement to blot out illiteracy is all embracing. It does not stop at any age or barrier, but includes all and proposes to liberate all.

"We shall have won the victory, however, and assured to every illiterate his chance when every educated person in this country assumes his responsibility for illiteracy and is constantly alert to perform his part; when every one who sees an illiterate make his mark for a signature or hears one admit that he cannot read or write, feels impelled to act instantly to free such persons from their handicap.

"As I go about over the country now, it is a frequent occurrence to have somebody come to me and say something like this: 'I want to tell you of a young man who came into our community. We found out that he could not read or write—a splendid-looking white boy, 18 years old, a regular Lincoln in appearance. My wife sent for the First Book and the writing material and gave him lessons every evening until he could write a fine letter and could read very well, and we are going to see that he continues his studies.'

WHY NOT SMILE

A German visitor to a number of American cities is reported to have been captivated by the American smile. Wherever he went, wherever he met, whatever inquiry he made, always a smile greeted him.

Other observers have described Americans as a rather gloomy visaged people, who go about their work with tense faces, as if the world depended on their getting somewhere or doing something. The truth lies somewhere between these two verdicts.

Yet why should not America be a land of smiles? There is no country in the world of greater promise. That is something to smile about. Just because things do not always go as they should is no reason for looking as if one had lost his best friend and making oneself feel as if he had. Cheerfulness is good for a man's digestion. Why not for a nation's? Smiling is merely cheerfulness' outward and visible sign.

SPIKE THAT RUMOR

The newsman's words are full of bears. Bears whose growls, it is charged, shake the financial foundations of the age, bears that invite themselves in to dine in city homes, and another species not so much talked-of—the woodchuck bear. This one, it seems, lives in a hole of doubt, distrust or malicious intent. He comes out furtively, and only in the twilight, and even then sees his shadow and starts predicting a long winter ahead for frozen business.

Report has it that this species is prowling about now. The woodchuck bear is recognizable by his skeptical grunts or the habit—unusual among ordinary bears—of whispering forebodings to everyone with whom he comes in contact. While Washington authorities are busy with the Wall Street variety, it behooves every breadwinner who is hoping for more work and more safety for his savings to watch out for the woodchuck or business bear.

His tracks have been seen by a number of persons in the last few weeks. The soundness of large companies has been brought into question by his activities. Often the statements of these organizations, published later, have shown them to be in sound condition. Nor does he hesitate to attack a bank now and then. Even today, when bank closings have decreased so as to be insignificant, one hears the position of the most ably managed and most liquid institutions questioned. "Have you heard anything about the Blank Bank?" asks someone, and the interrogation goes the rounds. In effect, it becomes a campaign against the institution mentioned and its harmful results are not easily calculable.

Experienced and alert persons know that when they are confronted with such a question it is to their own best interests to impede its circulation until some justification for it may be discovered. They know it is within their rights to go to the institution and apprise its authorities of the rumor, or, if they happen to be financially interested, to ask evidence of the institution's soundness, or even to withdraw their funds. But they know as well that the person who promiscuously spreads what may be an idle and a dangerous question, or encourage others to do so by showing a morbid interest in rumors of disaster, is unwittingly laying additional obstacles in the path to business recovery.—Christian Science Monitor.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—Wide-Eyed Wanderings:

Children in Mulberry street playing tag among tiers of coffins stacked before an undertaker's.

A visit to the Flea Circus in 42nd street, and information that business picked up while the circus was in town. The management not alarmed over pressure of reformers and some business men to out the flea midway and burlesk houses from the street.

James Aswell street. "We get too refined a crowd for that to happen!"

A peep through one of the telescopes at the Battery. "For a nickel you can count the spikes in the Statue of Liberty's headress."

But the most imaginative vendor of distant glances whispered: "See the gay life aboard the palatial ocean liners!" A glimpse, no doubt, of the Berengaria's bar through a porthole.

Narrow escape from a pall of coffee grounds and eggshells in Houston street. Learning from a cop on the beat that these sudden barrages from upstairs windows are one of the policemen's lives. "You can't arrest a lady when she done the same thing in the old country, can you?"

THIS NEW YORK

The truly astounding hodgepodge of shops on the rent-dear streets could serve as a basis for an entertaining volume of inquiry. For example, that orange beverage stand in 42nd street, which pays, to my certain knowledge $12,000 a year rent for a literal hole-in-the-wall.

There are scores of businesses which operate at a profit under conditions just as mystifying. Rent on Manhattan island is regulated, roughly, by the number of people passing a given corner; and by estimated buying power of the crowds frequenting that neighborhood.

A delicatessen, for example, may count, with luck, upon drawing one customer upon an average from each 200 who pass the door. A jeweler figures upon 1 out of 10,000 in the thickly populated areas, while a furrier is lucky if he can count on 1 in 20,000.

But though large department store executives, contemplating a removal to new quarters or a branch store, send squads of computers to stand at the proposed intersections and click off the passersby on tabulators concealed in the hand, no man can be sure beyond call what locations are best for a given business.

The only concerns which seem to thrive unbothered by such considerations—on Park avenue at Mulberry street—are delicatessens. I have never understood how undertakers select sites for hanging out their shingles.

FAN LETTER

My state of extreme jubilation today is due to the following epistle, which, while rather rash with intertemperate praise, you'll have to grant is fair enough:

"Dear Mr. Aswell: I am not addicted to writing mushy letters, so do not count me a 'fan.' While I would not go so far as to say your column is the worst I've ever read, I'd also not rank it absolutely perfect.—J. M. V., El Paso, Texas."

ROCK AND RYE!

FARM JOURNAL EDITOR SPEAKS OF EFFECT OF LOANS MADE TO FARMER

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor, The Farm Journal
Written for Central Press

It illustrates once more the conflict of interest between the individual and the group, that the government should still be making loans to farmers for crop planting this spring.

That sounds sociological and difficult. Just moment, please. I will explain.

Certain areas of the country still are suffering from drought, although the general dry spell of 1929 and 1930 has been completely relieved by copious rains in most parts of the country. Congress provided for making loans to these drought sections, and through the Reconstruction Finance corporation, to many other farming regions that seem to need help this year.

They did this, and thereby made it possible for some thousands of farmers to put in crops, who otherwise would have been forced out of the business and into the ranks of the unemployed.

No normal person would object to this, I suppose. Certainly the individual farmers who receive the money are just so much weight off the backs of the relief agencies. It is a great thing for these particular farmers.

But agriculture as a whole gets no benefit from these loans, and indeed might be better off without them. What agriculture needs most is better prices for its products, and these cannot be secured, in most cases, without a considerable cutting down on the volume of stuff that comes on the market.

Helping needy farmers to produce a crop this year goes exactly against this policy. It tends to increase production, where the business as a whole needs a decrease to adjust itself to the lower consumption of the cities. It helps the individual at the same time that it probably harms the group.

However, the secretary of agriculture has done what he could to harmonize these hostile interests. In the case of cotton, tobacco and peanuts, he has made loans only to planters who agree that they will plant not more than 65 per cent of the acreage they had in 1931.

A peanut grower who had 20 acres of peanuts in 1931, for example, must agree to plant no more than 13 acres in 1932. If he refuses, he gets no loan. Thus the secretary helps the grower, while doing a little something toward keeping down total production of the crop.

It seems logical enough. Indeed in some greatly over-expanded branches of agriculture, it is a pity that all individuals are not in need of loans, so that the 65 per cent maximum could be forced on the whole body of growers. It would be good for prices, and really I think most of the farmers themselves would welcome such a arrangement. It is only because "the other fellow" is not under control, that farmers usually feel obliged to produce as much of a given crop as they possibly can.

Of course, it must be remembered that the 65 per cent limit applies only to a small part of the total cotton, tobacco and peanut production. Most growers need no government loans, since they have satisfactory banking connections, or can finance their own plantings. So the effect on the total volume of production remains to be seen.

If you are using up the last of the old potatoes try this plan of cooking them. It is very tasty. If you prefer, you can omit the meat and sauerkraut, as the potato dish has eggs, and grated cheese may also be added. This recipe will serve four.

Today's Recipes
Wallachian Potatoes—Two cups hot mashed potato, three large sliced onions, one-third cup milk, three eggs, salt to taste. If potatoes happen to be cold they can be steamed. Cook onions quickly, steaming if possible. When well cooked put into a saucepan with butter. Add potato, egg and milk at once. Toss and stir until light and fluffy, like an omelet. Grated cheese may be added, if you make this the main dish.

The lovely green color of the emerald has always been said to be beneficial to the eyes. Gem engravers of early times kept these stones upon their work tables to relieve the eyestrain of their delicate task. No medieval apothecary considered his equipment complete unless he possessed an emerald for curing affections of the sight. Mighty, though near-sighted, Nero depended upon the heart of a flawless emerald for the fashioning of an eye-glass.

Magicians of old held that the emerald is a lover of truth, especially helpful in revealing the verity of lovers' oaths. Most of the great emeralds of today come from the gem pits of Siberia.

How Tuberculosis May Be Detected

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The dean of a large medical school reports that on the average five students a year have to drop out of classes on account of tuberculosis.

The tuberculosis becomes evident during those years, but it began long before. Probably all tuberculosis begins before the age of 10. These medical students then, in whom the disease is discovered between the ages of 20 and 25, had been sick some time. The disease could have been detected much earlier.

When it was detected it required from two to as much as 10 years, in some cases, to cure. If taken earlier, it would in most instances, have been conquered in a far shorter time and at a far less disrupting period in the individual's life.

These facts, are most important in emphasizing the necessity for routine examination of school children and children from 13 to 20 for tuberculosis of the lungs—that it is slow and insidious in onset, and that it can be cured in proportion to the earliness of its discovery.

Tuberculosis of the lungs, according to one of the greatest American authorities, is one of the most peculiar diseases we know—the infection is acquired in infancy or childhood; it occurs in one form in early life and gradually changes to an entirely different form in adult life. Only in adult life do we get the typical form we usually think of as tuberculosis of the lungs.

Equally confusing for the early recognition of the disease is absence of pain or any conspicuous or dramatic onset. Pain is one of the greatest life savers we have. It is a signal something is the matter. The patient pays attention and seeks relief. Such a friendly warning the tuberculosis patient does not have. In the two other common forms of tuberculosis in young life—bone and gland tuberculosis—the symptoms are, in most cases, sufficiently prominent to call for medical consultation. But in tuberculosis of the lungs, only when there is hemorrhage from the lungs or severe pleurisy is there any strikingly dramatic early sign.

How shall tuberculosis in young subjects be detected? In children under 12, the skin (von Pirquet) tuberculin test is coming back into favor. If the child's skin tuberculin test is negative at this age—which it is in about 60 to 70 per cent of cases—no further investigation need be undertaken.

In those who react positively to the skin tuberculin test, not all have active tuberculosis. For these positive reactors the best second test is, I believe, an X-ray picture of the chest. Physical examination of the chest by percussion and the stethoscope, if carefully done, will reveal changes in most instances, but so many cases are totally missed by this means, it must be said to our chagrin and shame, that the best advice of our day is a quick and exact examination of a number of subjects so no positive case will be missed, is the X-ray.

Wife Wants Mate And Lover

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR MISS LEE: I have been reading your advice for some time but do not quite agree with you in the case of 'Curious.' You know there is always two sides to a story.

"Just because the man takes married life for granted, that she knows he is making love to someone else, and if she finds it out it means either the breaking up of a home or the wrecking—temporarily, at least—of the happiness of that home. Jealousy of someone who tries to take one's man is fundamental, and I don't believe you can temper with such things in the present state of society, although I know there are writers who think married people should encourage their mates to have 'affairs' with others. It just won't work. That's all.

"Curious" had an excuse, at least for having a lover, because her husband had deserted her, but she should have divorced him first—and then have chosen a man who was free, for her companion.

I know a child can't be the companion that a person of one's own age can be, but a mother owes it to her son, nevertheless, to so live that he can be proud of her.

Having one's own way isn't always even the happiest thing in the end, you know. Sometimes what is called "sacrificing" oneself for the good of one's children brings far more lasting happiness.

And because many husbands philander is no excuse for wives to do likewise.

PEGGY P.: I'm afraid I don't know of any job for you at present. Maybe he knows some one who needs a girl to take care of her children. At any rate, he could make inquiries for you. I am so sorry not to be of more use to you in this matter.

BLUE EYES NO. 2: You don't say how old you are, but I judge not very old. I think probably mother knows best about you and her face. I would advise you to see if your love is the lasting kind, and if it is, nationality and religion won't prevent your marriage.

"A WIFE AND SWEETHEART."
I'm hopelessly old-fashioned, my dear, and can't see how an honorable woman can have a lover who is the husband of another woman. No wife who is in love with her husband is going to be happy if her husband is going to be happy if his wife is a lover.

"As his wife is a good cook and educated, praise her up to him and encourage them to get along. You know, Miss Lee, your son or daughter can't take the place of a sweetheart. You say men wouldn't marry a woman they run around with, but maybe she wouldn't want him as a husband, just a lover.

Did you ever stop to think and ponder over the unusually large number of softball players, identified with Xenia teams last season, who are not playing this year?

We have been at great pains to compile a partial list of the absentees and the size of the list is amazing. There appears to be a wealth of softball player talent going begging, though nearly all of the ten competing teams in the two leagues seem to be well fortified with good performers.

Players numbered among the missing this year include: Don Finlay, N. Murrell, Edgar Holten, John Hurley, Marvin Borst, Bob Shaw, Don Fuller, "Speed" Leopold (who has turned umpire), Byford Bortoroff, Carlton Lunsford, Ernest Muterspaw, Fred McCurran, "Buddy" Bolser, Bob Gegner, V. Moll, Russ Kimber, Carlton Anderson, Tommy McClelland, Bob Luttrell, Gultice, Hoag, Vannorsdall, Metzger, Bill Horner and "Monk" Herr.

Though there has not been a single postponement of a scheduled softball contest in either the National or American League so far this season (knock on wood), two double-headers have already been made necessary.

The two double-headers in prospect for the second round of play in the American League are the result of two tie games, in both of which Central High School's team has figured.

Central has exhibited a remarkable faculty in this respect for matching the number of runs scored by opponents, but no more. The Bucs, in two starts, have played the games with both Company L and the Ex-Highs. The score of the Company L contest was 2 to 2 after eight innings. Thursday night the Bucs struggled ten innings on even terms with the Ex-Highs, the count remaining deadlocked at 11 to 11.

Central's tie game with Company L will be played off as the second half of a double-header May 17. The tie contest with the Ex-Highs will be played off as the nightcap of a bargain bill May 26.

Earl Boxwell, secretary-treasurer of the Xenia Playground Association, points out that a real need exists for more seats for spectators at Cox Field. Eight or ten more benches, in his opinion, would solve the problem presented by the "standees" who crowd along the left field foul line. The present bleacher accommodations are inadequate to take care of the crowds and fans standing along the foul line, gradually ease out into the playing field, obscuring a clear view of the line.

DEFEATED BY LANGS BUT ESTABLISH NEW RECORD FOR ERRORS

Boot Eleven Chances As Winners Smash Out
12-2 Win

Just when the Lang Chevrolets had begun to imagine they might not win a National League softball game all season—after losing one straight—along came the obliging Coates Barbers, and the city champions fashioned a smashing 12 to 2 victory in true championship style Friday night on the Cox Field diamond.

Establishing a record that may stand even unto Judgment Day, the Barbers committed an inglorious total of eleven errors which, coupled with nine Lang hits, culminated in an even dozen tallies, distributed over six different innings.

Four of the Lang safeties were for extra bases, including two home runs inside the playing field, of which a third-baseman known as Fred "Bulldog" Smith, Dayton, formerly of Xenia, was the author.

Both round-trippers came with the bases empty, one in the third and another in the sixth inning. Fast running by "Bulldog" and slow fielding made it possible for him to completely circle the bases each time. He also had an ordinary single to his credit.

Eliminate the third inning and Harry Williams would have pitched a game in every respect perfect for Langs. In eight of the nine rounds he got the side out in one-two-three order, not allowing a hit, nor issuing a walk, and not a Coates player reached first.

In the third inning, however, the Barbers concentrated their total of three hits—all singles—and two runs scored. It was in this stanza that the only error perpetrated by the champions gave "Atlas" Smith, first batter, a life. Whittington followed with a safe hit, putting Smith on second.

"Atlas" was trapped off the middle bag, but maneuvered around and eventually reached third safely for a stolen base, while Whittington meandered down to second. McCoy's single to right scored Smith, after which Whittington was caught between third and home and tagged out by Corr. Wells delivered another single, advancing McCoy to third, from where he scored as Mendenhall was being retired on a grounder to Davis, unassisted, at first.

During the last six innings, the bats of the Barbers were completely muzzled, and there was noticeable a great facility to their stick work at the plate. In each round only three batters faced Willams, and they were retired in rotation.

Herman Wells, sacrificed as the burnt offering to pitch for Coates' team, was hit rather hard in the early rounds, and at all times was handicapped by dizzy fielding. You can't explain away eleven errors, nor will a team win many games in which it commits that number.

COUNTY CHAMPS WIN FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Jefferson Twp. High School's undefeated nine of Bowersville, scholastic baseball champions in Greene County, defeated Jeffersonville High School, champion of Fayette County, by a 5 to 3 score in a seven-inning contest on the Jeffersonville diamond Friday afternoon.

Kenneth Jasper, star pitcher for the Bowersville team, twirled another two-hit contest and was prevented from registering a shutout triumph when errors permitted Jeffersonville to tally a couple of runs in the last half of the seventh round.

Prior to representing Greene county in a Southwestern Ohio district Class B high school elimination baseball tournament at the University of Dayton, May 20 and 21, Jefferson's team will play a team from Cedarville College as a feature of activities on the closing day of school at Bowersville, Thursday afternoon next week.

CEDARVILLE WINS AND LOSES FRIDAY

Cedarville and Rio Grande divided a collegiate baseball double-header Friday afternoon on the Cedarville diamond.

Recording its first victory of the spring season, Cedarville's nine triumphed, 5 to 1, in the first half of the double bill, behind the invincible pitching of Preston Garlough, who allowed only five hits over the nine-inning route.

Rio Grande earned an even break by winning the night cap, 5 to 4, in a contest limited to seven innings. Charles Spencer pitched the second game for the Borstmen.

Cedarville's team will invade West Virginia next Saturday for a double-header with West Liberty, near Wheeling, W. Va. The Yellow Jackets may also play Wilberforce University sometime earlier in the week.

The bullet entered the president's head below the left ear, and penetrated the base of the cranium. Doumer's arms moved forward instinctively in one, quick, desperate motion. Then he collapsed into the arms of Francois Pietri, minister of national defense, and Chamberlain De Ribes, minister of pensions.

The crowd became excited, but the cooler heads acted quickly and rushed Gorgouloff. Guichard grappled with the assassin as he fired again. The bullet shattered the police official's wrist.

Claude Farrere, president of the author's league of France, seized the Russian's arm. Farrere was wounded slightly in the forearm as Gorgouloff emptied his gun. But Farrere and Guichard clung to the Russian and finally hurled him to the floor.

The crowd, now free from panic but hysterical with rage, closed in and attempted to seize Gorgouloff. He was kicked and beaten before Guichard and his aides dragged him away. News of the attack spread swiftly, and soon a crowd formed outside the mansion, demanding that the Russian be lynched. He was placed in a limousine, but a crowd at the Place Saint Philippe Du Roule surrounded the car shouting, "kill him, give him to us."

The chauffeur was forced to speed up the car and knock some of the mob out of the way. The Russian's eyes were almost shut and his face was discolored from blows he received.

While the Russian was held in chains at the central police station and told his story in the manner of a madman, Doumer had been taken across the street to the hospital and a desperate effort begun to save his life.

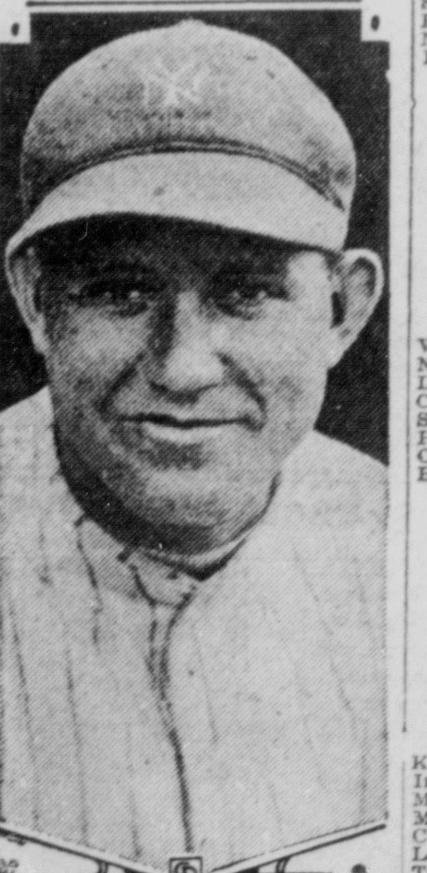

The Russian Youth's Federation of anti-Bolshevik exiles sent their president to the hospital, on instructions of Grand Duke Andre, to offer him blood for transfusions. "Since it was a Russian who shot M. Doumer, we Russians are anxious to offer our blood," the youths' president, Kasemby, said.

Physicians selected a young inmate to give blood for the transfusions. The president's resistance despite the loss of blood surprised his physicians and led to official optimism that he might recover. False reports of his death were circulated throughout France and the world.

Doctors started injections to keep the president alive, while others removed a bullet from Farrere's forearm and attended to Guichard's wrist. Farrere is the author of the novel, "The Man who Assassinated," which was made into a popular French movie last year.

With his family and heads of the government gathered around the cot, with the best physicians of the nation in attendance, and with millions of Frenchmen kneeling in prayer in the streets or standing with uncovered heads, the president drifted calmly to his death at 1:45 a. m. Saturday.

Arlen Abandons Lark To Make "Tiger Shark"

For the second time in nine years, Dick Arlen will make picture for a company other than Paramount.

With a vacation coming until July 13, when his new contract starts, Dick has signed at Warner's to play one of the three main roles in "Tiger Shark", which is Howard Hawks' epic of the tuna fishing industry in which Edward G. Robinson and Zita Johann have the other two featured parts.

The film will be Miss Johann's Hollywood debut, Warner's borrowing her from RKO, where she recently signed a contract. Arlen also was approached to play the lead in "Blessed Event", but turned it down for Hawks' film, which will be a special, requiring months in the filming. Lick's next picture at Paramount will be "Hot Ice", featuring a thrilling game of ice-hockey.

Warners also announce that Glenda Farrell will repeat her stage role in the screen version of "Life Begins". The studio has decided to retain the original title of the maternity hospital melodrama. For a while it was called "Woman's Day".

The picture will have an all stage trained cast with the exception of Loretta Young. It will mark the screen debut of Reginald Mason, who went to Hollywood with Grace George in "The First Mrs. Fraser." James Flood and Elliott Nugent will direct.

Hollywood has taken in no uncertain way to the many attractions of Melvyn Douglas, husband of Helen Gahagan and a smooth performer on stage or screen. He has been signed by Fox to play Elissa Landi's leading man in "Burnt Offering", thus completing the cast, which will include Alexander Kirkland, Warner Oland and Donald Crisp.

Following completion of his new picture, "Heart of New York", Al Jolson and his wife, Ruby Keeler Jolson, plan a world tour. His ar-

Lelia Hyams will head a well-deserved break in a "Red Headed Woman". She will play Chester Morris' wife, a part hardly second to that of the stenographer, who is, of course, Jean Harlow. The film is one of the few in production at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which is now in a seasonal lull.

Twenty Years '12- Ago -'32

Mr. William Golden, the well known engineer, who has been spending some time at Sulphur Lick, returned home on account of (home) sickness.

Mr. Ralph Hamilton, who spent last summer in Yellow Stone Park, in the employ of the Old Faithful Inn, will return there in June, accompanied by Fred Schultz.

H. L. Sayre, the druggist, dumped his new E. M. F. auto in a ditch, and badly damaged it, but he and four other occupants were unhurt.

The Xenia Handle Factory, located on N. Detroit St., for ten years, is being torn down, and the machinery will be shipped to New Castle, Ind.

KROGER COMPANY IS OBSERVING GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY NOW

The fiftieth anniversary of The Kroger Grocery and Baking Co., is being observed in communities in which the 4,844 stores of the company are located, beginning last Saturday and extending through May 14.

The founder, B. H. Kroger, the 18,518 employees and customers of the company are sharing in the celebration. The company began when Kroger set himself up as a coffee and tea merchant fifty years ago. A little later he opened his first grocery, a modest store, on E. Pearl St., Cincinnati.

Two weeks after the store opened a train killed the store's new horse, demolished the new delivery wagon and destroyed $68 worth of groceries. Shortly afterward the Ohio river overflowed its banks and flooded the store, damaging stock worth $300 but at the end of the first year the partners balanced their books and found assets of $2,620. Kroger then bought out his partner for $1,500.

By 1902 Kroger had thirty stores in operation in Cincinnati and in that year the company was incorporated under its present name and towns and cities outside of Cincinnati were sought for further expansion. In eight years, thirty-nine stores were opened in three cities outside of Cincinnati and in 1912 the company established a branch in St. Louis, where there are now 407 stores. Since then the company has built up its present chain of 4,844 stores in seventeen states, extending from Pittsburgh to Central Kansas and from Michigan to Mississippi.

The company operates thirteen bakeries, three packing plants, five dairies, two beverage plants, one candy factory and departments for roasting coffee and packing tea and spices.

THE RACE FOR GOVERNOR ... David S. Ingalls Adds Color To Race For Republican Nomination

David S. Ingalls

Clarence J. Brown

Myers Y. Cooper

Gov. George White

Ohio Republicans will go to the polls next Tuesday to select a candidate for governor to oppose Governor George White, Democratic incumbent, in the hope of loosening the hold Democrats have maintained on the governor's office in Ohio.

White is assured of the nomination Tuesday and will be the candidate of his party unless he develops as a candidate for either President or vice-president during the party convention in Chicago next month.

Republicans, however, will make their choice from three aspirants for the office. David Sinton Ingalls, at present assistant secretary of the navy for aviation; Clarence J. Brown, weekly newspaper publisher and present secretary of state and Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati realtor and former governor whom White defeated for office two years ago.

Color has been added to the campaign by the entrance of Ingalls, who turned his back on big business and chose rather a career of public service.

His father, Albert Ingalls and his grandfather, M. E. Ingalls, were both railroad executives of national renown in the industrial world.

But despite the comforts with which nature and family endowed him, young Ingalls left college to volunteer in the U. S. Naval Reserve Flying Corps in 1917, when he was but 18 years of age. In September of that year he went overseas to attend aviation schools in France and England.

Later, when stationed at Dunkirk as pilot of a sea fighting plane it was Ingalls' task to protect the heavier patrol planes on their bombing expeditions against enemy submarines. After that he served with a day bombing squad of the Royal Air Force and finally was assigned to Royal Air Force Squadron 213, a British fighting unit.

Swivel chair aviation held no lure for young Ingalls, and he was frequently in the thick of the fighting. He is officially credited with having brought down five enemy planes and one balloon, a record which established him as America's only naval air ace. These exploits won him the British Distinguished Flying Cross and the U. S. Distinguished Service Medal.

After the war, Ingalls resumed his studies and was graduated with a degree in law. It was while associated with a Cleveland law firm that he first became interested in politics and, in 1926, at the age of 27, he sought and won a seat in the legislature. He was re-elected for a second term, resigning to accept the position he now holds. Since his campaign for governor opened, he has been indulging his love of flying by using planes for travel to his political meetings over the state.

public service, that it is wrong to place a premium on poverty in consideration for public office in which ability and integrity should be the first consideration.

His friends feel that the public official who enters office so financially independent that the public's money holds no attraction for him, is more to be desired than the official who enters office poor and leaves rich.

In a period when economic issues are paramount, it is a wise course to elect to office those whose administration of their private affairs recommends them as capable of administering the affairs of state.

MILLER AND SCHURR TO TAKE OVER BANK

C. W. Miller and D. J. Schurr were designated Friday by Ira J. Fulton, state superintendent of banks, with authority of Common Pleas Court, to act as agents for the state and assist in the liquidation of assets of the Exchange Bank at Cedarville, which closed Wednesday. The same two agents have been serving in a similar capacity for the Commercial and Savings Bank Co., Xenia, which closed last February 29.

Dr. Summers speaker. Sunday is Mother's Day throughout the services. All persons wishing to honor the memory of their mother will wear the customary flower. A red one if she is living and a white one if she has passed on. Potted and cut flowers may be placed on the church altar. Cards bearing the name of the child and the name of the mother so honored. These plants will be fittingly dedicated at the close of the evening's program. Mother and her children are requested to, as nearly as is practicable to be seated in the same pew. Children should honor their parents by being present in the church and participating in these services.

The B. Y. P. U. choir presents the playlet "After School What?" and "A Musical Style Revue" Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Wednesday evening the prayer service will be led by Sister Fannie Hall's group. Deacon Porter is associated with this group.

A great treat is in store for our members and friends on the fifth Sunday of this month. Rev. E. S. Estelle of Tabernacle Baptist Church will preach for the Younger Peoples' Service. Aside from his choir Rev. Estelle will bring his famous radio Gospel quartet. A number of his members have signified their intention of accompanying the party. This service will be held at 3 p. m.

Officers of the church are requested to meet the pastor in the office of the church Sunday morning to arrange the week's program.

A very interesting class of instruction in church doctrine and polity is conducted each Wednesday evening following prayer meeting.

ANNUAL CATALOGUE REVEALS PLANS FOR COUNTY FAIR HERE

Containing premiums and regulations for the 93rd annual Greene County Fair, at the Xenia fairgrounds August 2, 3, 4 and 5, a catalogue published annually by the Greene County Agricultural Society, was issued Friday.

With prizes aggregating $55, including $15 in the beef breed display, $15 in the dairy breed display and $25 for organization floats, a livestock parade, to take place in front of the grandstand at 10:30 a. m. on the last day of the exposition, will again be a fair feature.

The parade will consist of boys' and girls' club floats and livestock, organization floats and livestock exhibits. All horses and cattle that have competed for prizes will be required to participate in the parade.

The Grange exhibit, to be judged August 4, will be in charge of a committee composed of A. H. Shawhan, T. W. Van Pelt and Ray Krug, with A. B. Lewis as the fair board member in charge. The fair board has appropriated to the Granges of the county five money awards totalling $200, ranging downward from $60 for first premium to $20 for fifth premium.

The fair board has also appropriated $20, and the Granges have given an additional $20, to carry on a juvenile Grange exhibit that will be a fair feature this year.

President Hoover is understood to have urged Ingalls to make the race for governor, knowing that the party should present the strongest possible front in this key state, in a presidential year. His platform has been based on a plea for governmental economy, and he has assailed bureaucracy and extravagance in public affairs, in his campaign speeches up and down the state.

Accustomed to money, he knows full well how to handle it. Springing from a race of industrial forebears, he promises the efficiency of big business in governmental affairs in place of political chicanery, pussy-footing, red-tape and graft.

Admittedly wealthy, he is impelled by the desire to serve rather than the desire for pecuniary gain, the wish to make his name known for economic reform in government, rather than the lure of petty politics for private aggrandizement.

He feels, and a great many Ohioans feel with him, that wealth should serve with those less amply endowed, that success in private affairs should be a recommendation rather than a bar to

Purchasing Power Of American Farmer Must Be Restored

"The American farmer has one-third of the buying power of this country in portable machinery, lumber, cement, fencing, paint, etc. Until the American farmer can be put back on a profitable basis he cannot purchase the products of American manufacturers, and prosperity cannot return in this country.

"Instead of reducing government expenditures, doing away with unnecessary bureaus and reducing salaries, officials are trying to meet prosperity expenditures by increased taxation. This, in my judgment, is the wrong thing to do, and not fair to the American people. I strongly feel that a curtailment of government expenditures and a reduction of government salaries should be put into effect at once."—E. E. GREINER.
